FAMOUS BUILDINGS BOMBED.

Chelsea Hospital, home of the red-coated Pensioners suffered in a recent bombing raid. The attack by arrogant young German louts made one hundred year old pensioner grumble a little at having to get up in the middle of the night.

Nearby Kensington Square, historic residential district built in the sixteen hundreds is, in the minds of Nazi halfwits, a military objective. Kensington Palace is also severely damaged by high explosive. Birthplace of Queen Victoria, it was also here that she heard the news of her accession to the Throne.

Dating back to 1689, the Palace was bought by William and Mary and rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren. Now, in this enlightened age, Germany tries to destroy it, as part of its contribution to the would-be "Nazi World Order."
