DESTINATION UNKNOWN.

About 9 months ago, the Queen Elizabeth, the worlds largest vessel, secretly and safely crossed the Atlantic to New York. With that voyage we confounded all doubters as to whether Britannia will rules the waves. When our gracious Queen launched her namesake a year before war broke out, she said "We proclaim our belief that by the Grace of God and by man's patience and goodwill, order may yet be brought out of confusion and peace out of turmoil". But "Man's patience and goodwill" did not stand up to the test. One effect of that sad fact is that this mighty ship (now needed in the service of Britain) painted a drab war-time grey, sails from New York, with few to see her go.

Queen Elizabeth sails for a "Destination unknown" or to be more exact, (to confound our enemies), "destination undivulged". May God Bless all who sail in her.
