SKI-LARKS IN U.S.

The snow babies have found a new nursery 3,000 feet up in Utah's rugged Wasac Range. So now it's anymore for the ski-lark. If you know someone who would like to join the party then just send him a cable. Down they come on the thrilling new run. A ski, a skim and a ski-daddle, they're on top of the world, sometimes. A couple of batmen and can they fly, with a keen wind and the mercury 15 below. No night bat could put up a finer show. With the night comes a procession that turns the force into a mystic fairyland. Like a snake making whoopee, the skiers slither down the run. It's an arctic spectacle that one long remembers.
