

6/24

BOMBER SQUADRONS OF OUR ALLIES.

...abam accord ere tuta dous 70 . "nohtsredil"

Royal Air Force Uniforms clothe many Nationals fighting alongside Britons for the liberation of Europe from Nazi serfdom. These men from Poland are attached to our Bomber Squadrons and have already made history by their daring raids over Germany and enemy occupied territory. Like most Europeans, they don't take long to learn our language so "briefing" by an English liaison Officer before taking off on a flight is made easy. When the bomb train comes along with a load of big eggs, the Poles really know that the time has come when they can avenge Warsaw. Going aboard their Wellington Bomber, the crew prepare for another sky adventure. The proverbial keen eyesight of the Poles makes them well suited to night bombing.

Now meet some of the Czech airmen in the R.A.F. Their natural aptitude for aero-engineering is not surprising, as many of them were craftsmen in the famous Skoda works. Czech Bomber crews have helped in the offensive against Germany dropping no less than fourteen thousand bombs on enemy targets. When 'bombing up' time comes round, willing hands fill up the bomb racks. Their determination to fight the nazi aggressor is shown by the fact that many of them travelled from as far afield as Russia, Palestine, Syria, and even India to reach this country. In forward Gun turret and pilots seat, they set forth to deal a blow at the same race of plunderers who inhabit their homeland. Pilots, gunners, bomb-aimers and others -(be they Poles, Czechs or any of the other Allied Fighters for freedom) wing their way across the sky in the quest for

24/10
BOMBER SQUADRONS OF OUR ALLIES.
"Liberation". Of such stuff are heroes made.

Royal Air Force Uniforms of the Navy National fighting alongside Britain for the liberation of Europe from Nazi serfdom. These men from Poland are attached to our Bomber Squadrons and have already made history by their daring raids over Germany and enemy occupied territory. Like most Europeans, they don't take long to learn our language so "briefing" by an English Liaison Officer before taking off on a flight is made easy. When the bomb train comes along with a load of big eggs, the Poles really know that the time has come when they can avenge Warsaw. Going aboard their Wellington Bomber, the crew prepare for another sky adventure. The proverbial keen eyesight of the Poles makes them well suited to night bombing.

Now meet some of the Czech airmen in the R.A.F. Their natural aptitude for aero-engineering is not surprising, as many of them were craftsmen in the famous Skoda works. Czech Bomber crews have helped in the offensive against Germany dropping no less than fourteen thousand bombs on enemy targets. When 'bombing up' time comes round, willing hands fill up the bomb racks. Their determination to fight the Nazi aggressor is shown by the fact that many of them travelled from as far afield as Russia, Palestine, Syria, and even India to reach this country. In forward Gun turret and pilot's seat, they set forth to deal a blow at the same race of plunderers who inhabit their homeland. Pilots, gunners, bomb-aimers and others - (be they Poles, Czechs or any of the other Allied Fighters for freedom) wing their way across the sky in the quest for F.T.O.