U.S. ATHLETICS

The famous Penn Games open again at Franklin Fields with a relay race between four of the hottest teams in the country and they make the pace a sizzler. Grabbing the last baton for the Navy, Gorer sprints for home with Williams and Bulova at his heels, and he makes it by inches. His team wins. Don Bounce shows how it's done in slow motion, up and over and topping six feet three. The long jump he clears more than 24 feet. A fine slow motion study of a champ pole jump. If you must be up the pole, be well up. Another stylist in action. The hundred yard sprint, a tearing dash with the biggest strain of all, it's a split second victory for Williams of Texas, an exciting finish to a thrilling show.
