

ATTACK ON TOBRUK HARBOUR.

.....

When the Army of the Nile struck another thorn in the side of Mussolini's empire and their Nazi bosses by re-capturing Tobruk, they know they'd have to be ever on the alert for enemy air attacks.

And they're here!.....It's a bit awkward for the chap without his hat (!) but there's serious work ahead. Jerry's attacking a British merchantman in the harbour, and he's got to be shown that such things are not allowed to go unpunished.....It's real war, with the Nazi 'eggs' falling too near for comfort. But our A.A. boys know their job (they've been at it ever since the days when the letter "V" stood for "Violets")

Hal That was a close one....But the men behind the defences are determined that the Nazis shall pay the price, and here's now they do it. Everything they've got they chuck into the air, almost before you can say H for Hell or Hitler, the attacker is just another of those things which clutter up the countryside.