

5-100800
PATHE GAZETTE: 41/61. (DUBLIN)

U.S. TROOPS IN TRAINING

Uncle Sam has his own ideas about training his own soldiers. He believes that they should be able to tackle anything, and taking a pillbox like taking a pill, is the least of their worries. To get promotion the American soldier must start at the bottom of the ladder. When he has finished with the ladder there are a few other things in store. Reminds you of an obstacle race, doesn't it? Here they come, smiling through. The water hazard with full packs across a narrow plank. Another snag, and they have to watch their step. Sandbag trenches, still with a full pack, and that do or die spirit. And finally just to show how flexible they are the recruits say it in swing time. They are coming across with some big ideas in the west.