MR. FRASER'S TOUR

New Zealand's Prime Minister has been on a round of calls. Firstly, as he said, to shake hands with all the New Zealanders he could contact in Britain. When in Aberdeen, he receives not only the Freedom of the City, but also the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Law from the University. Mr. Fraser is in the procession of University Senate, accompanied by the Lord Provost to the Graduation Room. On leaving the Hall, Mr. Fraser is wearing his garter and he is seen meeting a New Zealand soldier to whom he spreads his delight of being in the north after an absence of nearly 30 years, his pleasure in the honour conferred. Continuing his tour, Mr. Fraser receives a silver casket with a V, presentation being made by Provost Fraser of Tays. In the town of Fearn, Mr. Fraser remembers his relations and afterwards calls at the house he was born in and enjoyed a couple of days rest among his own people. Certainly New Zealand's Prime Minister has been seeing things for himself.
