MAGICIANS CONVENTION

The magicians come down to earth. Here they are arriving at Seattle for their convention. It's one of the most unconventional conventions you can ever imagine. Maybe that's natural with the people who dabble in the difficult art of illusion. Amateurs and professionals bring their ingenious props and they run through some of their tricks before the official reception. Porter, hold this for the gentleman. Well, what do you know about that. Big magicians need big hats, but rabbits aren't the only things you get out of them. Well, if that isn't little Emily. You never know what's on the cards with some of these fellows. So trick follows trick until our cameraman doesn't know whether it's Seattle or Tuesday week. The moguls of make-believe are doing their stuff. Now for the grand finale. Ladies and gentlemen, the magicians have vanished.
