

WITH U.S. FORCES IN ICELAND.

The newly equipped American Force in Iceland. Glad in Arctic uniforms, they get down to business. Incidentally, each man is supplied with clothing to provide him with ten different types of uniform for various duties.

Some of the U.S.A.'s finest troops are stationed on the Island, and they've brought plenty of transport vehicles, tanks and motorised equipment with them. American Merchant ships conveyed by American warships are continually crossing the three thousand miles of cold North Atlantic waters with heavy cargoes of war material.

It was on such convey work as this that the destroyer REUBEN JAMES was torpedoed by a prowling Nazi U.Boat. The KEARNEY also fell victim to a German submarine. This is the KEARNEY coming in now supported by a sister ship. You can still see the KEARNEY, but I wonder where that U.Boat is - maybe the Nazis are asking the same question. The Destroyer's damaged superstructure bears witness to her encounter in the Atlantic.

When the Pathe cameraman started shooting pictures, the Yanks shouted the nice friendly greeting "Here's mud in your Eye". But it's not only in your eye, it covers everything... and washing day at hot springs village comes around more than once a week. But with Pay Day it's different - they get twenty-one dollars a day (Whistle) Yes, once a month.
