

000525-2

PATHE GAZETTE: 42/8. (DUBLIN)

STORM LASHES CAPE

The Cape comes in for another bout of bad weather. The stormy seas lash the coast for miles on end. Heavy rain results in floods and parts of the peninsular are transformed into swamp land. This is very picturesque, but very inconvenient, when you need a diving party to find your dining room carpet. The youngsters of course wouldn't mind if it were like this all the year round, but not so the motorist. This is as bad as Venice and most of the drivers would trade in their car for a gondola at any price. The rest of the storm of course, is right on the sea front, and the driving wind carries a wall of foam that's like a snowfall. We all know the Cape is temperamental though and in a few months will have the grandest weather in the Union.