KID BOXERS.

Boxing Boys Clubs stage a boxing match, a free-for-all and the more the merrier. The ringside is as excited as in the ring. It's a put them up and knock 'em down kind of scrap, the idea being to floor as many opponents as you can and none of that by your leave business. There go the first victims, down but still game, tender in years but as tough as whipcords. A couple of human windmills, if they havent got the wind up. This little one fancies himself if only with one hand, maybe it's only his style. While the timekeeper keeps time, the bruisers keep pegging away. Did I say the little one can do it with one hand, of course he could if is wasn't for those darn pants. You can't beat a Boston boy and get away with it.
