HOLIDAYS AT HOME

Pies, pies and still more pies. Plenty to eat and drink to make the party go with a swing. The workers of the industrial town of Leigh in Lancashire know how to enjoy themselves. It's their holiday week and 2,500 of them take a canal trip for seven miles through the picturesque country to Worsley. As long as the weather keeps fine this holiday at home will take a lot of beating. They're off for a grand time. The music is supplied by a soldier with his squeeze-box. All the fun of the fair. When you've been on the swings there's the circus where you can watch others getting giddy for a change. This year, instead of a coconut, she's going to take home a rabbit. Sand castles, ice cream cones, sideshows, there's everything, and it's all been organised by the local factory. Good for them. We can't leave a fairground without a look at the good old Punch and Judy Show which interests old and young alike.
