FOOTBALL KIDS AND CUTIES

It's the American version of soccer, but you will get a sock just the same. Here they come, college boys from the bottom up with ankle length trousers and knee length jerseys built for comfort and never mind about the speed. On one side the Demon Dwarfs from New York's "Hall Kitchen". On the other Midget Maulers from the West Side. The Midget Maulers kick off and the Demon Dwarfs' captain is being tackled by his own pants. The Demon Dwarfs miss the ball and there are wild cheers and the Maulers recover. The Demon Dwarfs are defending, helped by "Butch" Mareno. The little guy with headgear that tends to smother him. It goes over biggin the stands, listen to that crowd, and an unidentified man who's afraid he is being followed makes his way a goal. But here's a game of soccer that's going to shock some of you a lot more. Meet the Lillies of Yaguna, Australia. Eleven good reasons why I'm crazy about football. This is a man's game, soccer, from the front row of the stands. Yaguna kicks off and scores a behinder (I'm sorry I thought it was Australian rules). Alright then, let's settle down and follow the more finer points of the game. For instance, look at Margery's ankles, yes and calves to match, knees too. Splendid look at Gladys dribbling and the trainer's run out of bibs, too. Yes, there's a sort of test match in this, look at this body line.

Yes, mother would be there. I know all about first aid, but he would get there first. They giggle and struggle and struggle and giggle, while the goalie faces powder and shot. Then someone discovers the ref's a man, play fair girls, Gladys saw him first. He's married, alright then throw him away.
