

NEWSBRIEFS.

When the bride successfully negotiates her tricky exit, you'll recognise tennis star Jean Nicholl arriving for her marriage at St. Georges, Hanover Square, London.

Look who's here! Kay Stammers. Lawn Tennis was responsible for Jean Nicholl's meeting with Sub-Lieutenant Bostock R.N.V.R. who now conveys his wife from the Church after the ceremony.

Don't 'spose they'll hear this but - good luck Newlyweds!

A revolutionary idea in maritime transportation is demonstrated in this model of "The Phantom" - a radio controlled cargo ship designed in America. This 90 feet model with a temporary deckhouse, is made entirely of concrete and rides almost flush with the water. The inventors say that one mother ship could convoy a fleet of ten 2,000 ton craft, controlling all of them by radio.

A snippet of news from the Solomonas. A heatload of Japanese prisoners shot out of their Zero planes and now in American custody. Nobody ever looked too good after being hauled out of the ocean, but these Japs seem really blue. Maybe the war news has got 'em down a bit.

It's worth repeating that these are Jap airmen. The selection officers in Tokyo must surely know what they're doing.
