

COMMANDO COURSE FOR VEHICLES.

This is a Commando Course for men and machines. Efficient drivers come to this school to learn to drive army vehicles over rough country and under conditions which subject them to severe tests.

An Infantry driving school where P.A.I. stands for Pitch, Bump and Impact. When a student can drive like this he is passed out. The thing is not to pass out in the process.

Taking the rough without any smooth, the Carriers are sent over a test course where a pocket-full of sea-sick tablets comes in handy.

Bug it over Mister; it'll be good practice for when we invade Vesuvius.

Now the carriers take to the water. Splendid training for war-time drivers; but heaven preserve us if they ever get Peace time jobs as taxi-drivers.

Away they go heading like trout up-stream.
