(2). TITLE.:- HER LITTLE SISTER.

Picture.:- It's like looking through the wrong end of a telescope --

--to see this bouncing babe making her way --

--down the River Elbe, to meet the big ship --

--in whose image she was made -- the liner Hamburg.

Dignity and impudence isn't in it ! The liner is about thirty --

--thousand times bigger than her little sister. And now --

--the little 'un must be hurried home. You never know the dangers of the deep after dark !

(3). TITLE.:- WHY STOP.

Picture.:- Robert Senechal drove round the Montlhery track for twenty four hours without a stop. Here's how he did it !

When his petrol was running low, a fresh supply was run alongside and transferred to his tank in this way. What possibilities this opens up ! Soon we'll be wirelessness from our cars for supplies to a petrol station some miles ahead,--

--and loading up on the road after this style. It's quite a good idea !

I wonder how the petrol pump people will take a promise to pay on the way back !

Senechal averaged ninety miles an hour for the entire twenty four hours with this ultra modern aid.

I don't know if he grew that beard during the run --or whether it belongs where it is !
