TITLE.:- JEDBURGH HANDRA'.

X
Picture. :- Tradespeople in the old town put up their shutters before the game starts. ... It's better, and cheaper, than having to put in new windows after it's all over.

The youth of the town are "all set" ready for the fray,--
--and the Town Clerk, (who was the last "King" of the Grammar-- School), throws off the first ball. ... Well aimed, sir ! ...

The battle's on ! ... Each wants one of the gay -- --coloured streamers adorning the ball - not that they'll be worth much after this scramble. ...

It rather looks as though sticking plaster and bandages will be more useful than ribbons !

It's the first time in history that this ancient custom has been filmed, --

--although it dates back hundreds of years. ...

It's a wonder there are any whole heads in the town the next morning.

The winner hands over the ball, and then gets it back.
And now what'll he do with it ?
