TITLE.:- END OF PLAY.

Picture.:- Vulcan, the god of Fire, must have been in --

--truly angry mood when the famous arena --

--fell a victim to the flames. The great stands--

--which have held so many thousands of cheering sport --

--enthusiasts, soon became a great blazing mass.

No more will hurrying feet tread the stairways, nor --

--the pay-boxes rake in the marks at high speed.

There have been some "hot" contests" in the --

--Rutt Arena, but never an thing to equal this !

Miles upon miles of seating are devoured as the flames lick --

--their way along the stands, with a fury which leaves the firemen --

--helpless. In a very short time the whole of the stands--

--of this great playground were practically wiped--

--out of existence. So, play is --

--ended - at least - for the time being !
