

(3). TITLE.:- AIR CIRCUIT OF ITALY.

Picture.:- Mussolini "starts something", and has to get up early in the morning to do it.

He sends off the first of the machines just after the break of dawn.

The course is around Italy in six "hops". Away goes another one for the long trail.

His Excellency signals them off to the tick of the clock. If I were one --

--of the pilots, I should hate to fail to --

--get away promptly after such a peremptory signal as Il Duce is giving each of these fellows.

One after the other, the machines --

--"take-off" until, at last, they have all taken the air.

Only then does the Premier give thought to himself, --

--for it is now well past --

--breakfast-time ! Early rising is only one of the things he inspires by setting an example !
