TITLE. :- EMPIRE SCHOOL.

Picture. :- When King Edward's Horse was disbanded after the Great War, some twenty-odd thousand pounds were left in the Regiment's exchequer

With some of it they built this fine hall at the Imperial Service College for the sons of men of the Services who can't afford public school fees The tablet, set between the two flags is to the honour of the Regiment that made the hall possible.

Now the boys receive due recognition of their good efforts during the term I see there are a lot of books there! I sincerely hope they're the kind we used to dream about getting when we were youngsters.

This big gathering of fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers, serves as a worthy inauguration of the splendid addition to the famous school.
