

2-22/85

(7).

TITLE.:- ROUND TABLE CONFERENCE.

Picture.:- All is quiet on the St. James's front. XXXX Much quieter than one would expect, having in mind the great significance of the discussions--

--going on. XXXX The more important delegates to the Indian Round-Table Conference have now arrived, and they are "getting down to" the business in hand - a Federation of All-India,--

--embracing the Indian States and British India, under a two-chamber legislature.

The most striking delegate is, of course, Mahatma Gandhi, the Congress leader, who hopes for more than he can ever get. XX

From the Palace, Mr. Gandhi returns to his simple haven in the East End, where crowds wait in the -- --hope of catching a glimpse of him as he passes into the Settlement, on his way --

--up to his roof-top lodgings amidst the chimney pots of London town.