PRESIDENT AS HOST - Monsieur Doumer,
President of the French Republic, gives a party to little Parisians.

-France-

Picture. :- These talented young Parisians are displaying their art before a very distinguished--

--company. The children dance as never before, inspired by having the President of the great French Republic--

--as their host. Winsome prettiness flushed with excitement by the honour they have achieved.

Oh yes ! There's a tea; a party without gateaux and bon-bons is unthinkable !

As these children are chosen from those whose--

--school teachers have given full marks for good conduct, their table manners--

--are quite - well - restrained. Madame and President Doumer find them extremely well behaved. Second helpings are seldom asked for.

And then the Christmas Tree ! It is worth being good for that ! Isn't it ?

One of the youngest guests has her choice, and of course chooses something which makes a noise !

Then comes a general clamour for toys from the tree ! What a party !

These hands all got presents, and somegot two !
Vive Monsieur le President !
