FLOCKS IN DANGER - Sudden snow storm
isolates thousands of sheep on the mountains.

-Klamath Hills, U.S.A.-

Picture:- Well, it's a battle against Mother Nature.
Sheep herders are frantic! Early snow--

-has caught them unprepared, and they are racing their flocks down from the-- --mountains. Already two feet of snow has fallen behind them, --

--and thousands of sheep are isolated high up in the hills.

And unless the ranchers can get a supply of hay to them, they will--

--probably perish. Their only hope is for a sudden thaw.
This lucky flock managed to get through.

The knowing blackbirds follow them to get the seeds caught in the wool, and maybe, to keep their feet warm.
