BATTLE OF LIVERPOOL - University students
stage annual clash in preparation for Panto Day.

-Lancashire-

Picture. :- The Liverpool Students' war is on ! Who shall lead the Panto Day procession ? That's the burning question of-- --the day. The flour of the enemy falls on their sticky foes. If that barrage doesn't drive them to their funk holes,--

--well, there's a good supply of stale fish heads, sick oranges and eggs--

--that have long since been dead. Soft fruit, softer than most soft fruit, bursts with a burble, as it lands on the face which stops it.

Flour bombs fly everywhere, but it's good fun. At least the students think so.

There are a few casualties, but the wounds are usually soon healed with a needle--

--and thread. That means it's a ripping scrap ! Hello ! A battalion moves at the double to attack the enemy's-- --flank. Up the Faculty ! Forward the engineers ! But watch that you don't get your retreat out off !
