LOOKING FORWARD - - Privileged glimpses of milady's wear for the autumn, at Dorland Hall, London.

Picture:- Dame Fashion says that women are to look more like ladies, and less like laddies, in the-- --coming days. Come behind the scenes and see the "last word" for next season. You're all fixed up, miss, off you go !

We are at a very exclusive "trade show" of feminine-- --adornment. Byjona suit in lace trimmed satin beaute. Pink, and very becoming !

Ha ! ----- er ! ----- White crepe-de-chine, those ! --- Ah !

More autumnal night wear !Coat of pink brocaded satin over shell-pink suit ! Very nice, too !

Two tones of green satin comprise another nocturne to-- --make buyers think of fountain pens and order forms.

Here's one for your fan-cy ! It is green lace trimmed with green net frills. Pretty !

Thank heavens, girls won't be boys much longer ! One of the most-- --popular gowns in the show is the one on the right. Blue angel-skin-lace with flower-trimmed cape in two tones. ... The other is of black ring-velvet.

(Noted for future reference, I'll be bound!) ...The next--

--pair are, an evening gown of red crushed crepe, and another of similar material, with coatee ! Backs are to have a little dressing, you'll notice.

Ostrich feathers for cape trimming sound a new note. Very effective adjuncts to these white and black satin evening gowns of full length.

Classical design in white flamsiole with diamonds trimming - - the newest--

--fashion for that old-fashioned, (but ~~ever~~ popular) institution - - marriage. *****

Milady's wear is to reveal the lines of the female form - - (not so much as here), but you must admit it will be somewhat of a relief from the rather masculine modes of the past). - - - I'm all for it !
