

A TALL ORDER - - Blackpool's mighty tower gets a spring-clean, and new coat for the holiday season.

Picture.

518 feet of wash-and-brush-up wanted here !
A thousand of the steel girders equals nearly half an acre. And a--

--large face like that takes some washing and brushing up. How many pots of paint are required to cover it, I do not know, but I am sure it's a lot. Painting the Tower is-- --full time employment. For as soon as the men have--

--reached the top, the bottom wants repainting again.
Workmen on this job must have nerves of steel. When our cameraman went up for these pictures he--

--perspired so freely that rain was recorded-- --in Blackpool. One false step and those painters fall out of work quicker than if-- --they checked the foreman. If you go to Blackpool, this summer, don't forget to admire the brush-work of these fearless, though anonymous, landscape artists.
