

ROYAL HONEYMOONERS.

RETURN TO ENGLAND.

Picture.:- The third important air arrival--

--is the Horatious at Croydon, bringing Their Royal Highnesses The Duke and Duchess of Kent.

The Prince, looking very bronzed and fit, descends the gangway. The Duchess follows. This Croydon arrival rather disappointed Plymouth. The Royal Pair were going to land at the West--

--seaport, but a change of plans brought them from Paris by air. This is the official end of the official royal honeymoon. A very--

--trying wind is cutting across the Tarmac, not at all pleasant, and the Duchess decides to seek early shelter of the Duke's black sports car which was waiting for them. Before leaving, the Duke--

--thanks Captain O.P. Jones, his pilot, for the smoothness--

--of the journey over. His Royal Highness then enters the car to drive to London. A few hours will be spent at the Duke and Duchess's new home in Belgrave Square, before they travel down to Windsor in the evening to--

-join the Court, and spend Easter with the King and Queen. On May 1st they will take up permanent residence at Belgrave Square.
