BY THE GLAD SEA WAVES

BANK HOLIDAY AT THE COAST

In case some of you have not noticed it----- ---may I mention that summer has come? Blackpool has put----- on

--wears gayest summer dress and the visitors have---- --- put on their overcoats. Occasionally the sun peeps through and-----

-----evidently sees something it doesn't like because it hastily withdraws, and the skies weep bitterly. Of course, the moon would have taken no notice-----

---However, we now switch back to Blackpool as such, taking a----- ----look at the miniature railway in passing. Lord Lascelles christened the dwarf locomotive 'Princess Mary' and ~~we~~ rode in it too. But if your liver's sluggish -----

---this is a good shake-up-----

----Our next call for port -- I mean our next port of----- -- call is Margate. An awful lot of ----- ----sand here, which is used chiefly for sitting on-----

---Hunting is pretty good and fishing seldom----

---disappoints, various kinds of bait being fairly readily taken.
Later for-----

---sentimental reasons one brings the children -----

---to Margate because after all, you--- ---can't blame Margate. Other amusements are----- ---here in plenty. This, for---- ---instance if it appeals to you; or, all the thrills -----

----of flying without a chance of a crash. Just the thing to make flying popular. -----

---Oh, here's the quiet little village of Scithend. EFFECTS----- (VERY NOISY)

Its not really as noisy as that but -----

J.P. 52141

--- it is as gay as it sounds. The half of London which isn't at Margate ----

--- must be here enjoying all the fun-----

--- of the fair, and the brunettes. EFFECTS-----

EFFECTS---THREE SHOTS.

---and now to leave the whirligig of holiday amusement. Life, work and the pay envelope call ----

--- and excursion trains wait for no man.
