

TIDWORTH TATTOO.

DAYLIGHT REHEARSAL.

Picture.:-

Even in the broad light of day, Tidworth Tattoo makes an inspiring spectacle. Ten-thousand school children are present to witness the final full-dress daylight rehearsal, and they love every minute of it. The Musical Ride by Dragoon Guards gives a thrill to a generation born to the screech of motor horns and the fumes of petrol driven vehicles. A spectacular charge across the arena ends this event.

(APPLAUSE SHOT).

The historic episode is the Battle of Quebec. By scaling the cliffs at night the British were able to assemble for battle against the French before the enemy were aware of their presence, on the plains of Abraham. Hastily forming up for battle the French attacked. But it is recorded that although the attack opened at ten-thirty, by ten-forty, only ten minutes later, the French were in full retreat. This battle concluded the struggle between Britain and France and gave us the undisputed possession of Canada.

A grand show is brought to a fitting finale by a parade of all the troops taking part,

some two-thousand soldier-actors in all. They gave their services

free and voluntarily, and no expense falls on army funds.
Profits go to welfare and recreational efforts of the Southern Command.

(EFFECTS TO END OF STORY).