(A) Picture.:- A crowd composed chiefly of Southampton University students welcomes the Duke of York on his arrival to inaugurate the new Edward Turner Simms Library. The door of the new building is opened with a key presented by the architect, Lieutenant-Colonel Gutheridge. After a short ceremony, Lord Mottistone, Lord-Lieutenant of Hampshire, other officials, and crowds of crowds speed the parting guest, dignifying their approval in the usual way.

(B). Picture.:- For once Scotland seems behind the times. This Edinburgh procession of Scottish state trumpeters, Lord Lyon King of Arms, sheriffs, and what-nots, is on its way to the ancient Mercat Cross to read to the Scottish people all about the Dissolution of Parliament, and the Re-election of the next. And all this happens more than a week after Parliament has been dissolved. Perhaps it shows how excited the Scottish people are not about the General Election, and perhaps it shows they're right !
