

At the City Hall in Lisbon, there were demonstrations of sympathy with Portuguese subjects in Goa --- that tiny section of India that has belonged to Portugal for four centuries. Farewells were said as a contingent of soldiers left for Goa --- reinforcements ~~fairly~~ for the garrison in that new centre of power politics.

LEGION OF HONOUR.

In Boulogne, this monument marks the place occupied by the throne of Napoleon I when he instituted that famous French decoration, the Legion of Honour. On this anniversary, a century and a half later, crosses were awarded to veterans of France's wars of the twentieth century.

EXPLORER'S BODY RAISED.

Mass was said at the bottom of a pit a thousand feet deep, when a team of explorers revisited the scene of a two-year-old tragedy. It was here, in the French Pyrennes, that one their comrades lost his life during a scientific expedition. The body was raised and taken to a nearby church for burial. Accomplished in spite of formidable hazards.

This is a moving story of devotion to a lost comrade,

SOAPBOX DERBY.

There's an international flavour about the annual Soapbox Derby in Akron, Ohio; even entries ~~came~~ from Europe, came to battle out the Championship of the home-mades. Thousands of spectators watched this car race of Formula Nothing where it's downhill all the way. The winner was All-American --- from Los Angeles.

SKIING.

Here's a ski-jumpin championship in an unusual location; not Switzerland, not Norway --- but Australia. But the contestants are natives of Norway --- workers who are building the Power House on the Snowy River. The winner made a jump of forty-four metres.
