

This was how the City said: "Welcome home --- and well done!" when Princess Margaret came to London's Mansion House. And something like four hundred attended the official luncheon of the Lord Mayor, Sir Seymour Howard, and the City Corporation. A cold had prevented the attendance of the Prime Minister, but Lady Churchill --- and the Archbishop of Canterbury --- and Mr and Mrs Attlee were to be seen among the distinguished gathering which drank the Lord Mayor's toast to the royal guest; and listened to her modest reply on the subject of the Caribbean Tour.
