

MALENKOV.

16/3/56.

Arriving at London Airport from Moscow --- Mr Malenkov, who succeeded Stalin as Prime Minister of Soviet Russia. Mr Malenkov's present office is Minister of his country's electric power stations, and in this ~~xxxx~~ capacity he was welcomed by Britain's Fuel Minister, Mr Aubrey Jones, by Lord Citrine and by the Soviet Ambassador, Mr ~~Malik~~ <sup>MALIK</sup>. Lord Citrine, as Chairman of the Central Electricity Authority, is Mr Malenkov's official host.

MARX STATUE.

Coinciding with the visit of Mr Malenkov to Britain, a memorial statue to Karl Marx was unveiled in Highgate Cemetery

POPE.

His Holiness the Pope celebrated Mass in the Basilica of St Peter's, Rome, to mark a dual occasion..... the seventeenth anniversary of his accession to the supreme office of the Roman Catholic Church, and his own birthday. Pope Pius XII is eighty this year.

~~STAR~~ STARS IN BELGIUM.

Taking a look round Brussels was a group of Britain's young film stars including Belinda Lee, June Thorburn, Julia Arnall and Josephine Griffin. The chief purpose of the visit to Belgium was to attend, in Antwerp, the Black and White Ball --- ~~given annually to encourage all stars of the cinema.~~ In their honour, the decorations included ~~some~~ scenes of London. The stars made many personal appearances; and --- heading the male contingent of Michael Craig, Tony Wright and Terence Longden, James Robertson Justice received a complimentary bouquet.

REVOLVING HOTEL.

A spiral staircase in a hotel in Japan takes newlywed couples up to what must surely be the most enterprising bridal suite of all time. The whole room revolves ~~xxxxx~~ once every thirty minutes and gives a complete view of the surrounding countryside. It's something that even Hollywood never thought of --- every half-hour gives honeymoon couples a change of scenery.
