As naval aircraft get bigger and faster, the problem of safe landing on a deck becomes more acute. So here --- on board the Royal Navy's most modern carrier Ark Royal --- are the first trial landings of the De Havilland 110. It's the largest all-weather fighter yet built for the Navy.

And now --- the deck trials of the Vickers Supermarine N.113....

TRUX AND TRUX AND

In the Mediterranean --- General Gruenther studied plans for a naval exercise. This was one of his last big operations, before retirement from the post of Supreme Allied Commander of NATO Forces in Europe

It's one of the biggest Air-Sea Exercises yet undertaken.

Ships and planes taking part warm came from the navel of Britain,

France, Italy, Greece, Turkey and the United States.
