

It's an old Hollywood custom; and it's Rock Hudson helping Elizabeth Taylor to leave her impression outside the Chinese Theatre. And then it's his turn. So Rock Hudson, having already made his mark on celluloid, joins the immortals of the screen whose hands and feet are marked in cement.

MOTO-CROSS COUNTRY.

In Ireland, international motor cycle champions competed in the moto-cross-country event. The course was a stiff one, at a place named Red Bog, in County Wicklow. Best of the Irish riders were J.D. Roche and Eric Williams. But all the first places went to riders from England --- Brian Stonebridge, T. Cheshire and D.S. Tye, first, second and third.

ROCKET.

At Wallops Island, Virginia, American scientists tested out a new type of rocket to be used for collecting data from outer space. It's much cheaper than any other rocket of its kind, and --- as you see --- quite small. It'll climb eighty miles above the earth --- reaching a top speed of nearly four thousand miles an hour.

POZNAN TRIALS.

Here is a film from Poznan in Poland, of the trials of twelve men arrested in connection with the revolt, in that town behind the Iron Curtain, on June 28th. The first trial concerned an attack on a policeman. In a second trial, the accusations were of stealing weapons, which were brought into court. A further ~~trial~~ trial was of six more men, also accused of stealing arms.

POLISH HARVEST FESTIVAL.

Another story in news despatches from Poland, is in happier vein. Sixty thousand farmers from different districts, packed into the Warsaw Stadium to celebrate a good harvest --- and to watch traditional folk dancing. An important part of the festival was the accompaniment of the dancing ^{by} a variety of unusual instruments ~~making~~ making sweet music.
