something in the neighbourhood of seven thousand dogs were entered for the famous Crufts Show at London's Olympia --- which is a lot of dogs in any neighbourhood. And, as usual, the genius of their owners was ombibled in their infinite continuous for toking point to get them ready for judging. [(This year, fashion seems to have come down heavily in favour of long hair.)

And long noses.

WINTER BATHING BELLES.

While Britain is enjoying unusually mild winter weather, Sun Valley, Idaho is enjoying weather that's mild and bitter. They're snowballing and bathing on the same day.

O So when a Sun Valley girl takes off her top coat it looks as if she's used a paint-stripper.

Well --- there's no doubt which is the hardier sex. But maybe the water was warmed before the girls got in it.

From settlements in Israel on the border of Egypt, come these pictures of a peacetime situation that is no more than an uneasy truce. Simultaneously, in thickly-populated districts like Tel Aviv, tens of thousands of Israelis arganized took part in demonstrations of protest against the attitude of the United Nations Organisation.

DUKE IN GAMBIA.

Continuing his tour of the remote places of the Commonwealth, the Duke of Edinburgh watched the building of cances at Gambia, in West A frica. During the course of a two-day stay, he was entertained by displays of dancing. And --- as always on such occasions --- the dancers threw themselves into the job with gusto-
