

At the airport at Aswan, the Begum and other members of the family arrived from Switzerland to attend the funeral of the late Aga Khan.

The coffin was ferried across the River Nile --- to be laid in the grounds of the family villa on the west bank. Eventually it will be taken to a mausoleum, now being specially built.

COTTON PICKING.

In Colombia, they're getting in a harvest of cotton that looks like being the best of all time. With the help of low-flying pilots to keep off the pests by spraying --- they say it'll bring in something like ten million dollars.

Bath on the flat and up and down the mountains --- these daredevil flyers skim only a few feet above the ground. ^{ENOUGH} Even to scare the cotton off you, even before it's made into pants.

AMPOL TRIAL.

One of the toughest motor rallies in the world is the Ampol Trial across Australia. And one of the overseas competitors was a 1927 Rolls Royce ^{belonging to} ~~thinking of~~ the dear old days when the Duchess ~~thought~~ used to think she was in the bush country if she was more than two miles from Bond Street. This section is known as the Birdsville Track --- ^{usually} the air's so dusty the birds have to walk. ^{The} You're not liable to meet overmuch traffic --- and it's a bet that what you do meet, doesn't carry a rear light. At this point the Rolls was the clear leader of its class --- after hundreds of miles through the sort of places where nobody keeps a butler.

WATER SKI-ING.

At Cypress Gardens, in Florida --- Ken Tibado boasted that he would go water ski-ing on shoe-skis ~~that were~~ fifteen inches long. The girls said he couldn't ~~do it~~ --- so Ken ~~said~~ said Oh, shush! After that he showed them a few tricks. Our cameraman still couldn't believe it so Ken told him to take more water with it.
